

Downwind 6 days/5 nights

Example of downwind over 6 days, modifiable according to the wind, tide, your desires...Several variants are possible by staying for example 2 days on the same spot or by avoiding some busy cities. A 6 days downwind is a great adventure to live

Day 1 : Quebra Mar / Lagoinha

Departure directly from the spot of Quebra Mar in Paracuru, towards Lagoinha. On this portion the 4x4 will not be able to follow us because we have no access to the beach in 4x4, a huge arm of fresh water blocks the passage on the way. The 4x4 will wait for us directly in Lagoinha

Departure of the Downwind on the big beach in direction of Mundau.

From 30 to 60 km for this stage (estimated km in a straight line, for example from 45 to 75 km of kite)

Lunch on the way in Flecheiras.

Night in Mundau

Cabana do kite

Day 2 : Mundau/Icarai

Wide beach all along, where the 4x4 assistance drives. Flat or agitated water depending on the tide. 30 km of kite to Icarai.

Icarai de Amontada, more commonly called Icaraizinho, is a small fishing village in the middle of sand dunes, palm and coconut groves. It reigns in Icaraizinho a calm, quiet atmosphere.

Lunch at the "Cabana do kite" or "the Spot

Afternoon of relaxation or navigation on the spot of Icarai.

At low tide, the sea is not too rough, leaving room for a spot that is more freeride, while at high tide the spot is a little more bump & Jump. It is also at high tide that you will find the best conditions to practice the wave.

The best period for waves is from mid-November to the end of January.

Night Icarai.

Seven Beaufort

Day 3 : Icaraí/ Ilha de Guajiru.

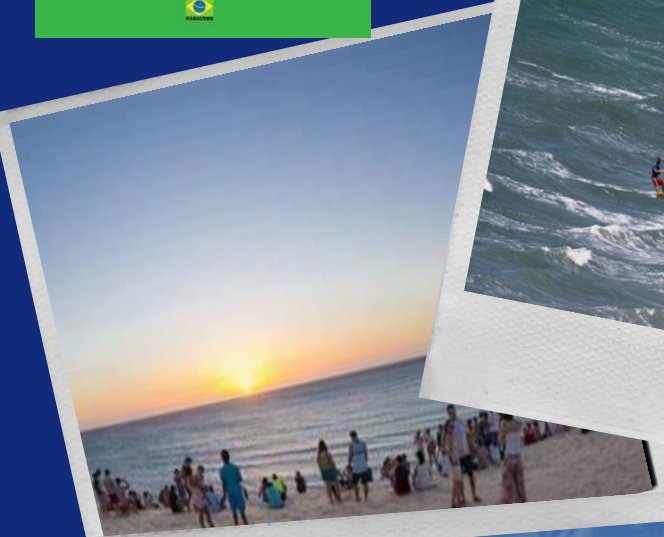

We continue to kite along the coast with a lot of flat water or small waves. We pass by small fishing villages and beautiful white sand beaches lined with coconut trees. Here, time stands still. The comfortable atmosphere, the tasting of freshly grilled fish and caipirinhas will make you want to stay here forever.

Navigation to Almofala for 30 km. Depending on the water level we can go directly to Almofala.

Lunch in Almofala

Navigation for 15 km to Ilha de Guariju. It is a large lagoon protected from the ocean by a huge sand tongue of several kilometers but subject to the tides. So don't be surprised if you can't kite at low tide. Concerning the wind, no worries, it blows at 100% in high season. Ilha do Guajiru is a tiny place which is summarized in a street and a dozen pousadas installed in front of the lagoon. Your room will be 20 meters from the beach to rig your kitesurfing equipment.

Night in Ilha de Guariju

Day 4 : Ilha de Guajiru/Jericoacoara

Breakfast, briefing for 30Km... If the tide is high, we leave directly from the hotel. If it is low, we drive a few kilometers before getting into the water.

Downwind towards Prêa and Jérico. The wind will be the strongest of the kitetrip. Lunch stop just before Prêa.

Another 15 km and stop at the entrance of Jerico, to avoid the downwind.

It is important to arrive in Jeri early because the entrance to the city is controlled. Sand streets, stores and sunset on the dune with a Caipi.

The night activities in Jeri are numerous and very tempting!

Of course, you decide your fate...but the next day

Day 5: Jericoacoara/Camocim

40 km

The first part of this stage takes us to Tatajuba for lunch.

We ride on the beach, cross a freshwater arm, go up and down the dunes to arrive at Tatajuba for a playful stop!

Lunch a little further in a fisherman's hut. We have 25 km to go to the ferry to cross the river in front of Camocim.

Last night in Camocim, a fisherman village in a very nice Pousada

Accommodations during the Downwind

In Brazil, in the North East part, there are very few hotels.

Accommodation is in Pousadas, simple or luxury. Depending on the period, some are full and you have to book quickly, especially since these establishments are not interested in people sleeping only one night.

Here are some pictures of the Pousadas that we usually use or we can probably stop on the course. If they are not available, we will look for the equivalent.
